Presentation

The BIP programme “Take due diligence seriously: cases and materials” intends to present and discuss with law students of master's courses from French, Spanish and Italian universities problems of interpretation and application of the recent European directive n. 2024/1760 on human rights due diligence in the light of the application experience of the French law on devoir de vigilance 2017 and the German law Lieferkettengesetz 2021, as well as transnational company agreements (TCAs) negotiated by major multinational companies.

The BIP programme will consist of daily seminars led by transnational labour law professors from partner universities, who will explore issues related to compliance with due diligence obligations, disputes brought before national and international courts by unions and NGOs, the use of mediation tools or collective mechanisms in cases of violation of human rights at work or environmental damage caused by the
